

IPMA Level D – Certified Project Management Associate

Advanced training for project management professionals

IPMA® Level D - Knowing how it works. For advanced learners.

For people who want to deepen their PM knowledge and master methods with confidence, there is the IPMA Level D.

This includes: Work package managers, students in degree programs with strong project management content, trainees in dual vocational training and experienced professionals who want to underpin their previous experience with sound PM knowledge.

Through extensive exercises, participants learn to further develop their own project management skills and to apply PM methods confidently in everyday life. Experience in project management or professional training is not a prerequisite.

After successful certification, participants may use the title IPMA® Level D - Certified Project Management Associate.
